

Welcome to TimesPeople
What's this?

Share and Discover the Best of NYTimes.com

2:55 PM

Log In or Register
No, thanks

HOME PAGE MY TIMES TODAY'S PAPER VIDEO MOST POPULAR TIMES TOPICS

Get Home Delivery Log In Register Now

The New York Times

U.S.

Search All NYTimes.com

Go

WORLD U.S. N.Y. / REGION BUSINESS TECHNOLOGY SCIENCE HEALTH SPORTS OPINION ARTS STYLE TRAVEL JOBS REAL ESTATE AUTOS
POLITICS WASHINGTON EDUCATION

Advertise on NYTimes.com

U.S. to Open Public Land Near Parks for Drilling

George Frey for The New York Times

The Bush administration wants to open thousands of acres close to Arches National Park, near Moab, Utah, and two other parks for oil and natural gas exploration.

By FELICITY BARRINGER
Published: November 7, 2008

The Bureau of Land Management has expanded its oil and gas lease program in eastern Utah to include tens of thousands of acres on or near the boundaries of three national parks, according to revised maps published this week.

Multimedia

Map

Fury Over Public Land

Related

Times Topics: Bureau of Land Management

National Park Service officials say that the decision to open lands close to Arches National Park and Dinosaur National Monument and within eyeshot of Canyonlands National Park was made without the kind of consultation that had previously been routine.

The inclusion of the new lease tracts angered environmental groups, which were already critical of the bureau's original lease proposal, made public this fall, because they said it could lead to industrial activity in empty areas of the state, some prized for their sweeping vistas, like Desolation Canyon, and others for their ancient petroglyphs, like Nine Mile Canyon.

The bureau's new maps, made public on Election Day, show not just those empty areas but 40 to 45 new areas where leasing will also be allowed.

The tracts will be sold at auction on Dec. 19, the last lease sale before President Bush

More Articles in US »

Breaking News Alerts by E-Mail

Sign up to be notified when important news breaks.
 Sign Up
Privacy Policy

Add High-Speed Internet and DIRECTV® service.
Starting at only $59⁹⁸/mo. BUILD AN HD BUNDLE
*Requires Qwest local phone package and includes promotional offers for 12 months for qualifying customers. HD Access fee not included. Online or call-in rebate required. Conditions apply.
Qwest

Advertise on NYTimes.com

SIGN IN TO E-MAIL OR SAVE THIS

PRINT

REPRINTS

SHARE

ARTICLE TOOLS

SPONSORED BY

MOST POPULAR

E-MAILED BLOGGED SEARCHED

1. Nicholas D. Kristof: Obama and the War on Brains
2. Frank Rich: It Still Felt Good the Morning After
3. Finding Fame With a Prescient Call for Obama
4. Cholesterol-Fighting Drugs Show Wider Benefit
5. Paul Krugman: Franklin Delano Obama?
6. Phys Ed: Stretching: The Truth
7. Op-Ed Contributor: The Climate for Change
8. Op-Ed Contributor: All Apologies
9. Secret Order Lets U.S. Raid Al Qaeda
10. Thomas L. Friedman: Show Me the Money

Go to Complete List »

The New York Times OPINION
nytimes.com/opinion

Welcome to TimesPeople
What's this?

Share and Discover the Best of NYTimes.com

2:55 PM

Log In or Register
No, thanks

activity concerns park managers, who worry about the impact on the air, water and wildlife within the park, as well as the potential for noise, said Michael D. Snyder, a regional director of the Park Service who is based in Denver.

The Park Service is usually given one to three months to comment on leases, Mr. Snyder added.

"This is the first time," he said, "where we have not had sufficient opportunity to comment."

He said he had asked the Bureau of Land Management's state director, Selma Sierra, to pull the new tracts from the December auction for more study. She refused.

Kent Hoffman, a deputy director of the land management bureau's Utah office, said the Park Service had ample opportunity to review the broad management plan under which the leases were developed, even if it was not given the usual notice of which leases were being offered for sale. Mr. Hoffman added that 37 days remained to air any protests and review the decision about which tracts to lease.

If any leases are sold Dec. 19 and subsequently delivered to the buyers before Inauguration Day, however, it will be difficult for the new administration to reverse those decisions.

The perennial struggle over the use of public lands in the West, which traditionally pits ranchers, miners and oil and gas interests against environmentalists and groups interested in historic preservation, has been particularly acute in Utah.

Many in the state, where resentment of the federal government runs deep, remain angry about the Clinton administration's decision in 1999 to set aside for protection three million acres deemed to have "wilderness qualities." The state sued; in 2003, the Bush administration settled and removed protections from those acres.

Before the new lands could be opened to leasing, the land management bureau had to revise its resource management plans designating which areas are appropriate for mining, drilling and motorized recreation and which should remain free of such activity. Last week, six such plans, covering the central and eastern parts of Utah, were approved. The Dec. 19 auction was expected to include energy leases of some land previously off limits, like Desolation Canyon. But not until Tuesday did the bureau release the final maps containing the new leases near park boundaries.

Kathleen Sgamma, the government affairs director of the Independent Petroleum Association of the Mountain States, said of the new lease proposals, "If you can't develop oil and natural gas in this part of rural Utah, we might as well concede the United States has lost all interest in energy security."

But David Nimkin, the southwest regional director of the National Parks Conservation Association, said, "It's very clear that there's a time clock, and they are anxious to move these out for sale, for obvious reasons."

The leases, Mr. Nimkin said, seem to be "profoundly in conflict with the direction of the new administration and the new Congress."

A version of this article appeared in print on November 8, 2008, on page A13 of the New York edition.

More Articles in US »

Need to know more? 50% off home delivery of The Times.

Also in Opinion:

Hail to the chief of staff
Bring on the puppy and the rookie
Tears to remember

ADVERTISEMENTS

Need to know more?
Get 50% off home delivery of The Times.

One Event. Endless Opportunities.
Register today at nytimes.com/bizsummit
The New York Times Small Business Summit
OPEN

Ads by Google

what's this?

2009 New Car Sales

Low Priced Cars On Sale Now. Save Thousands Off MSRP.
Acura.SecretAutoPrice.com

National@ Car Rental

Book Your Car Online & Bypass the Counter. Great Rates.
Reserve Now!
www.NationalCar.com

New Mexico land for sale

Affordable New Mexico land. Land bargains starting at $97 down.
RadiusLand.com

Ads by Google

what's this?

Welcome to TimesPeople

What's this?

Share and Discover the Best of NYTimes.com

2:55 PM

Log In or Register

No, thanks

freeoffers-media.com

National Park Information

Your Guide To U.S. National Park Information & Links!
www.National-Park-Information.com

Land Cruiser Dealers

Special offers from Official Toyota dealers in the Salt Lake City area.
www.buyatoyota.com

Past Coverage

- Energy Companies Don't Use Half of Federal Land They Lease (August 25, 2004)
- It's Gas vs. Heritage in Navajo Country (October 14, 2003)
- Study Finds Profits in Grazing Subleases (October 25, 1992)
- Wild Horses Ensnared in People's Battles (July 2, 1989)

Related Searches

- Bureau of Land Management Get E-Mail Alerts
- Renting and Leasing Get E-Mail Alerts
- Offshore Exploration and Installations Get E-Mail Alerts
- National Parks, Monuments and Seashores Get E-Mail Alerts

INSIDE NYTIMES.COM

TELEVISION »

Flagging 'Heroes' Attempts Self-Rescue

OPINION »

Op-Ed: In a Rude World, Waging a Campaign of Subtle Remonstrance

N.Y. / REGION »

6 Cents Is 6 Cents, but Time? That's Something

U.S. »

Bake Sales Fall Victim to Push for Healthier Foods

OPINION »

Think Again: Dr. Torture

Stanley Fish explores why psychology lagged behind its sister professions regarding participation in interrogations.

POLITICS »

Barack a Hot Name for New Babies